Each Team Has Had a Two-Day Vacation—Lawmakers in Shape.

VIRGINIA STATE LEAGUE

Rain at Portsmouth, Roanoke and Danville prevents all games.

Games To-Day.
Richmond at Portsmouth.
Norfolk at Roanoke.
Lynchburg at Danville.

In the three cities yesterday where Virginia League games were scheduled the ardent fans looked dismayed from their office windows and read the signs: "No game to-day; rain," which were entirely superficial, as everybody was perfectly aware that it was raining. Meanwhile managers figured up their losses, biting their nails in despair and the patter of raindrops and the howl of the four winds as they raced unabated across the heavens.

It seems that the baseball supporters and the calculating managers were the victims of a domestic rough-house on high between Jupiter Pluvius and Juno and, of course, the mortals below had to suffer for those heedlessly thrown thunderbolts.

This makes two days in succession that all the teams have rested, and they ought to be anxious to go to it good and hard during the remainder of the week. Perry Lips reports his squad to be in good condition and ready for the fray, so the Portsmouth fans ought to see two good games there to-day and to-morrow.

LISTLESS CROWD SEES HORSES RACE

NEW YORK, June 15.—With betting on the races halted by the presence of the police only a scant 2,000 of the faithful made their way to Gravesend race-track to-day to see the events.

The rain drove the crowd into the grandstands, where it listlessly watched the races and made no open attempt to make any wagers.

The police patrolled the betting ring and kept every one moving, and a squad of bluecoats were stationed in the club house with instructions to arrest any one attempting to make a bet.

Nobody was arrested, however, but two favorites were able to land the money in the sloppy going. Mellisa in the Astoria Stakes, and Juggler in the Kings county, said to-day that while he is as determined as ever to stamp out the gambling evil at the tracks, still there are some points which cannot be ignored.

He said that to get a clear case against a better or a bookmaker, there must be a posting of odds, the passing of money or a contract given. Unless that could be proved there would be no case against any person arrested charged with violating the anti-betting laws.
